1. Executive summary

1.1 About this report

This report presents summary information and an analysis of the migration advice industry in Australia. The tables contain data primarily from the Department via the Integrated Client Service Environment (ICSE) and OMARA. Data entered into other Departmental systems, such as those used offshore, are not reflected in this report. Discrepancies may occur between sums of the component items and totals where figures have been rounded. Statistics provided by other areas of the Department were correct at the time of generation and may vary slightly from those contained in other reports.

While the data contained in this report has been formulated with all due care, the OMARA does not warrant or represent that the data is free from errors or omission, or that it is exhaustive. It is also possible that some statistics are no longer available in previous formats or available at all.

*Please note:

From 1 July 2016 this report has been produced and published biannually.

3. Complaint processing by the OMARA

A key objective for the OMARA in effectively regulating registered migration agents is to ensure they comply with the Code of Conduct for RMA's (the Code). The Code aims to establish a minimum level of professional standards for agents and includes the obligations of a registered migration agent toward clients, employees and other agents; record keeping and management; and financial duties.

3.1 Complaint outcomes

The table below lists the outcomes of complaints about breaches of the Code finalised by the OMARA from 1 January to 30 June 2018. The table includes the number of matters that did not proceed to sanction and were subsequently resolved through informal negotiation, issuing of a corrective action recommendation or a warning letter to the agent. Explanatory notes on the table are provided below.

Complaint outcomes	Complaints finalised
1 Breach found: resolved and finalised without sanction, corrective instruction provided for action by agent	47
2 No breach found: may include corrective instruction	36
3 Dismissed	215
4 Resulted in sanction decision (see section 4.1)	31
Total	329

- 1. Breach found: resolved and finalised without sanction, corrective instruction provided for action by agent. Where an agent has been found to have breached the Code but those breaches are considered insufficient to warrant a sanction, the complaint may be resolved by negotiation or issuing of a corrective action recommendation or a warning letter to the agent.
- 2. No breach found (may include corrective instruction provided to the agent for action): Issues, where the evidence is considered insufficient to warrant a breach finding, may be resolved by a corrective action recommendation to the agent. Complaints are "Closed with no breach found" if the agent is found not to have breached the Code after investigation of a complaint.
- 3. Dismissed: Complaints are dismissed where the OMARA has no jurisdiction (e.g. complaints about unregistered individuals); there is insufficient evidence to pursue; the complaint is withdrawn; or if the complainant will not provide consent for the complaint to be published to the agent.
- 4. Resulted in sanction decision: Sanction decisions occur where serious breaches of the Code have been found. The types of sanction decision are: caution; suspension; cancellation of registration; and barring former registered migration agents from applying for registration. See section 4.1.

*Note: a sanction decision may result from multiple complaints about a single agent.

The table below shows the number of agents who were sanctioned as a result of those complaints.

Caution	1	0	1
Suspension	4	4	8

Barring	2	6	8
Total	10	14	24

4.2 Sanction outcomes

Cautions:

- No caution decisions were made during the period 1 January to 30 June 2018.

Suspensions:

- An agent was suspended for a period of 18 months and subject to certain conditions for failing to act in the best interests of clients. Such conduct included failure to provide frank and candid advice, failure to keep the client fully informed of the progress of the application, failure to issue receipts or invoices and failure to maintain proper records. The agent had been previously warned about similar conduct by the Authority. The agent has not appealed the decision.
- An agent was suspended for a period of three months and subject to certain conditions for failing to be contactable for a protracted period of time. The agent has not appealed the decision.

Unclassified

- An agent was suspended for a period of 12 months and subject to certain conditions for failing to act in the client's best interests. Such conduct included failure to notify the client of a request for further information from the Department, failure to provide a response to the Department which resulted in the application being refused. In addition, the agent failed to advise the client of the visa outcome and lodged an appeal without the client's knowledge. In response to the Authority, the agent endeavoured to avoid accountability and provided a limited response that could not be substantiated by any evidence. The Authority was also satisfied that the agent had failed to fulfil the expectations of a registered migration agent with regard to integrity, fitness and propriety. The agent has appealed the decision.
- An agent was suspended for a period of six months and subject to certain conditions. The agent's former partner produced a fraudulent document in the form of an acknowledgement letter purportedly issued by the Department, which was sent to the complainant via the Agent's email. However the complainant's visa application was never lodged. The Authority found that the agent's poor conduct and judgment contributed to the environment in which this fraudulent act occurred. The agent also provided misleading information to the Authority and withheld other information, hindering the Authority's investigation. Due to the Agent's poor client management, the Agent did not identify that the visa application was not lodged until contacted by the client approximately six months later. The Authority was also satisfied that the agent had failed to fulfil the expectations of a registered migration agent with regard to integrity, fitness and propriety. The agent did not appeal this decision.

Cancellations:

- An agent's registration was cancelled because the Authority found the agent had prepared applications and statutory declarations for protection visa applications, which contained duplicate and template claims. The Authority was satisfied that the agent knew or should have reasonably known that the information provided to the Department was misleading and/or inaccurate. In doing so, the agent exposed clients to potential adverse visa outcomes and/or criminal prosecution and acted contrary to the law. The Authority also found the agent repeatedly attempted to mislead the Authority during the course of its investigation. The Authority was satisfied that the agent had failed to fulfil the expectations of a registered migration agent with regard to integrity, fitness and propriety. The agent has appealed the decision.
- An agent's registration was cancelled because the Authority found that the agent had set up two companies through which employer sponsored visa applications were lodged on behalf of clients, with no prospects of success. The Authority also found that prior to becoming registered as an agent, the agent had been the subject of investigations by the Department and the Australian Federal Police in relation to provision of false information about the existence of five businesses. The Authority was satisfied that the Agent was not a person of integrity, or otherwise not a fit and proper person to give immigration assistance, and posed a serious risk to consumers. The agent has appealed the decision.
- An agent's registration was cancelled because the Authority found that the agent had employed the complainant in breach of the complainant's visa conditions resulting in visa cancellation. The Authority also found that the agent had been the subject of two separate investigations by the Department and the Fair Work Ombudsman in relation to serious contraventions as an approved business sponsor and employer, and had provided false information in two concurrent applications for repeat registration as a migration agent. As such, the Authority was satisfied that the agent was not a person of integrity, or otherwise not a fit and proper person to give immigration assistance, and posed a serious risk to consumers. The agent did not appeal this decision.
- An agent's registration was cancelled because the Authority found the agent lodged 457 sponsorship and nomination applications for the agent's own business, which was found to have never operated. The agent was found to have provided false and misleading information to the Department and to the Authority. The Authority was also satisfied that the agent had failed to fulfil the expectations of a registered migration agent with regard to integrity, fitness and propriety. The agent did not appeal this decision.

Barring:

- A former agent was barred from registration for a period of five years because the Authority found that the former agent failed to enter into agreements for services and fees with clients, failed to confirm instructions in writing and knowingly encouraged clients to lodge applications with poor prospects of success. The former agent has not appealed the decision.
- A former agent was barred from registration for a period of two years because the Authority found that the former agent failed to exercise the due diligence expected of a migration agent, which resulted in adverse outcomes for clients. The Authority also found that the agent provided incorrect advice, lodged applications with little or no prospect of success and did not provide clients with contracts or receipts for payment. The former agent has not appealed the decision.
- A former agent was barred from registration for a period of five years because the Authority found that the former agent failed to act in accordance with the law by producing two fraudulent government documents and representing them as genuine in order to deceive a client as to the status of an application, which the former agent had failed to lodge. The former agent has not appealed the decision.
- A former agent was barred from registration for a period of two years because the Authority was satisfied the former agent failed to exercise the due diligence expected of a migration agent, which resulted in adverse outcomes for clients. The Authority found that the former agent provided poor advice to clients; failed to respond to requests for information, which resulted in adverse outcomes for clients; failed to advise the clients about their adverse outcomes, which resulted in their being onshore unlawfully. The Authority also found the former agent misled clients as to the reasons for their unlawful status and charged fees that represented unnecessary expenses for the clients. The former agent has not appealed the decision.
- A former agent was barred from registration for a period of five years because the Authority was satisfied the former agent failed to act competently, diligently or fairly on a client's behalf. The Authority found the former agent failed to manage a conflict of interest in facilitating a client's employment for the purpose of applying for an employer sponsored permanent visa. The Authority also found the former agent knowingly submitted fraudulent information to the Department in support of the client's visa application and failed to advise the client about what would happen when the Department cancelled and barred the sponsor. The Authority was also satisfied that the former agent demonstrated a willingness to disregard the law and to act contrary to the Code of Conduct and the professional standards expected of a registered migration agent. The former agent has not appealed the decision.
- A former agent was barred from registration for a period of five years because the Authority was satisfied the former agent had repeatedly failed to fulfil his obligations under the Code of Conduct to act competently, diligently, and in the best interests of his client, in the handling of visa matters over a significant period of time, which resulted in an adverse visa outcome for the client. The Authority found that the former agent engaged in fraudulent conduct and failed to properly cooperate with the Authority's investigation, demonstrating contempt for the Authority's consumer protection function, and an indifference to, and disregard of, Australian law. The former agent has not appealed the decision.
